CHECKING CAUSE OF BOAT FIRE—Ed Friloux, Hancock County arson squad member, checks the origin of a flash-fire which injured one person Friday at Pearl River. Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Delbert Seay reported that Brian Bennett, General Delivery, Pearl River, was arrested and charged with grand larceny in the incident. Seay said Bennett is lodged in the Hancock County jail with no bond by order of his probation officer. Bennett was first treated for second degree burns to his right arm and leg at Hancock General Hospital before being released and arrested, Seay said, adding the flash fire apparently was caused by some gas in a can. Dennis Tartavouille, Hancock County deputy sheriff who investigated the incident, stated the boat was owned by Bobby Carver of Pearl River. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

County reaps $226,000 from Pearlington raid

By NAN PATTON EHRLIGHT

Hancock County's coffers are richer by some $226,027 as a result of forfeiture of cash confiscated in an April drug bust in Pearlington.

But the funds, together with interest earned since they were seized, must be deposited in a special account.

The principal cannot be spent without further court order. Circuit Judge J. Ruble Griffin ruled Friday in granting District Attorney Cono Caranna's request that the money be turned over to Hancock County.

And interest from the account may be expended only to purchase capital equipment, including automobiles, for the sheriff's department.

That interest, Sheriff Ronald Peterson estimated, should amount to about $24,000 per year.

In addition to the cash, the county will receive profits from the sale of various weapons, jewelry and two automobiles—a 1977 Chevrolet and a 1973 Oldsmobile—seized during the raid.

Griffin was scheduled to rule on the forfeiture at 9:30 a.m. Friday, but court was delayed until about 11:30 while plea bargaining took place with four men arrested during the raid, each of whom was charged with possession with intent to deliver 5,010 pounds of marijuana.

The maximum penalty following that felony conviction is 30 years imprisonment and a $1 million fine.

As a result of the plea bargain settlement, all four men waived their right to indictment by grand jury and pled guilty.

Charges of conspiracy to violate the state's drug laws, contained in the original affidavit, were dropped.

Following recommendations from Caranna, Griffin sentenced Jeffery Dennis Kerr, 42, of 41 Riverside Dr. in Pearl River, site of the drug raid, to ten years in prison with two years suspended.

Kerr was also fined $50,000, with $25,000 paid Friday and $25,000 deferred for 90 days.

Hugh Turner, 38, of San Rafael, Calif., was sentenced to ten years in prison with four years suspended.

He was fined $25,000, with $10,673 paid from the confiscated cash and the balance deferred for 90 days.

Winslow Byrne, 40, of Wakefield, R.I., received a ten-year suspended sentence, was placed on probation for five years and fined $50,000.

Peter Kerr, the son of Jeffery Kerr, had no prior arrest record and reached his 18th birthday only three days before his arrest. James K. Dukes of Hattiesburg, the defendants' attorney, told the court.

Kerr lives in California with his mother and was only visiting his father, Dukes said.

Griffin granted the younger Kerr a non-adjudication of guilt and placed him on probation for two years, explaining that if he completes his probationary period satisfactorily he will not lose any of his civil rights and will have no record of a felony conviction.

The four men were also ordered to pay court costs in connection with the proceedings.

The probations for Byrne and Peter Kerr were to be transferred to Massachusetts and California respectively.

WINDFALL FOR HANCOCK COUNTY—Some $226,000 in cash confiscated during a drug bust in Pearl River, shown here being loaded into a satchel by Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson at the scene of the arrests in April, were ordered forfeited to the county Friday by Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin. Ruble's order instructed that the money be invested in a special account. Interest from the account may be used only for the purchase of capital equipment for the sheriff's office, including automobiles. The principal may not be expended except by further order of the court. (Staff photo by Nan Patton Ehrbright)

Funding too expensive

Wastewater plans axed by EPA

By STAFF REPORTERS

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has to change its plans because of federal laws on funding, according to John Longo, district chairman.

"Attempts to fund a spray irrigation system for treatment of wastewater have been abandoned because it would cost over 300 per cent more than an alternate plan, and that violates federal law," Longo said Saturday.

The officials gave up after attending a meeting in Atlanta, Ga., last week, where an Environmental Protection Agency official told them there was no way to fund the project.

Longo stated, "Federal laws and regulations require EPA to fund the most cost-effective, environmentally-sound alternative."

"Cost estimates on a spray irrigation system are three times higher than the Jourdan River alternative that Jourdan River residents objected to."

As a new alternative, wastewater officials will try to obtain funding for a process that would use existing treatment systems and would discharge treated wastewater into Edwards Bayou.

Some construction will be required because the treated wastewater from Bay St. Louis is presently discharged into Watts Bayou and will have to be transported to the Waveland treatment plant and then to Waveland's wastewater discharge in Edwards Bayou.

The state has already approved the Jourdan River, into which Edwards Bayou empties, as a discharge site.

Because that approval has already been obtained, a collection system for the Jourdan could be funded at 75 percent, according to Wastewater District Administrator Ethel Schott.

"Additional upgrading will have to be done at the Waveland treatment plant and a line added from the Bay lagoon to the plant, then the treated water would be discharged into Edwards Bayou at the present discharge site," Longo stated.

"We feel this is a good compromise as the residents of Jourdan River have objected to the state's proposal of changing the discharge from Edwards Bayou to the river," Longo added.

The Hancock County Wastewater District has a August 15 deadline to submit the alternate plan to the state for

Judge to review alleged drug deal

By NAN PATTON EHRLIGHT

A hearing on motions in a drug suit in Hancock County Circuit Court, scheduled for Monday, has been postponed pending a federal court decision determining whether the state can proceed to prosecute Virginia Guilbeau and her son Gregory Ladner.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said yesterday a hearing on the matter will be held in federal court at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

On June 28 Guilbeau and Ladner filed suit against Peterson and District Attorney Cono Caranna asking for a temporary injunction enjoining Caranna and Peterson and their agents from prosecuting Guilbeau and Ladner on charges of possession with intent to distribute more than 2½ tons of marijuana.

Guilbeau, 56, and Ladner, 34, were among five people arrested after law enforcement officials seized a rental truck containing the marijuana at Guilbeau's residence on Firetower Road on March 24.

The federal complaint filed by William F. Dukes and James K. Dukes of Dukes, Dukes and Keating of Gulfport claims Guilbeau and Ladner were promised immunity in exchange for cooperating with law enforcement officials.

They were promised, they said, no prosecution in state court with only misdemeanor charges filed by federal authorities.

The complaint alleges the two were held incommunicado at Guilbeau's residence from about 11 a.m. on March 24 until about 1 p.m. on March 25.

They were "under incessant questioning and interrogation...were refused a request to call their attorney, and...Ladner was informed that unless he cooperated with officers...he would be spending the next 40 years in the penitentiary, along with his mother," the complaint states.

In addition, the federal complaint alleges, Caranna and Peterson "falsely conspired together to present certain distorted and limited testimony" to the Hancock County grand jury that indicted Guilbeau and Ladner on April 2.

The indictments and proposed state

Enclosed fire hydrant evokes complaints

By DENA BISNETTE

Several Bay Oaks Drive residents met Tuesday with the Bay St. Louis City Council to express concern about a fire hydrant that has been enclosed in a fenced yard.

According to Lynn Brandin, who has a vacation home on Bay Oaks Drive, the hydrant is the only one on the Beach Road end of the street.

Brandin said he is worried about the fire department's access to the hydrant, which is several feet inside a wooden fence surrounding a resident's yard.

He added that the resident who erected the fence has allegedly painted the hydrant green and allowed a plant to grow on it.

"A fence won't hamper us if we have to get to a hydrant," said Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana when contacted about the matter later.

He said he has received no complaints about the hydrant in question but plans to check on it.

Brandin was also concerned part of the fence may extend into the right of way for the street.

He said the resident has erected posts along the front of the fence to prevent beach users from parking there.

The council decided any right-of-way problem would probably be under county jurisdiction, but said the hydrant is city property and authorized Mayor Larry Bennett to look into the matter.

The council also heard from Prima Wusnack and Linda Haas, who requested the city share expenses involved in repairing the city-county public library.

The board of supervisors has already approved advertising for bids for the repairs, because the county co-owns the library with the city.

The council delayed taking any action until its members have met with Fred Wagner, the architect in charge of the repairs.

Two zoning members added in Waveland

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Waveland Board of Aldermen Tuesday approved the appointment of Harold Zimmerman and Delores Richmond to the Planning and Zoning Commission upon recommendation by Mayor John Longo.

The Planning and Zoning Commission had requested the appointment of two new members at its last meeting because of a continuing problem with attendance at the commission's last six meetings.

The new appointments replace Anna Laura Miller and Lester Haverty Jr., Longo said.

Lucien Gex, city attorney, reported he had checked the titles of the new cemetery property back to 1950 and still has some digging to do in the title search. He did say he should be finished by next month.

The aldermen also approved June's docket at the brief meeting on the eve of the Fourth of July.

Two-car accident results in fatality

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

A two-car accident last night near Pearlington resulted in one fatality.

Dead as a result of the accident is Mary Virginia "Ginger" Buice, 22, a resident of Long Beach.

Injured was Gary L. Brock of Crystal Springs.

The accident occurred about 11:15 p.m. on the old US-90 highway two miles east of Pearlington, according to a dispatcher for the Mississippi Highway Patrol, who said further details were not available.

Trooper Curtis Newman, she said, was the investigating officer.

According to the dispatcher, the incident is still being investigated.

Du Pont's Delisle plant wins second safety honor

The Du Pont Company's titanium dioxide plant in Delisle has qualified for its second Board of Directors Safety Award by accumulating more than 2.2 million hours without a lost workday injury.

David L. Settle, plant manager, said the plant has gone nearly 700 days since its last lost workday case.

"The Du Pont Board of Directors Safety Award is the biggest honor the company can bestow on a plant for safety achievement," said Settle. "We are proud of the achievement because it's an award won by the employees here at Delisle. It means that everyone has completed their job in a safe manner."

The Du Pont Board of Directors Safety Award is based on a formula of exposure hours, hazards of the job and number of employees in a plant. The award follows the injury account procedures prescribed by the U.S. Occupational Health and Safety Administration.

An average employment of 576 Delisle employees was used in computing the award. If Delisle had been an average U.S. chemical plant, there would have been 12 lost workday cases in the time period covered by the award.

Du Pont believes that all accidents are preventable, and that each employee is responsible for safe work habits. The responsibility for safety begins with top corporate management.

At the plant it rests with the plant manager. In 1983 the company's worldwide safety record was .035 lost workday injuries per 200,000 exposure hours, a 46 percent improvement of 1982's record setting performance.

Delisle's perfect record in lost workday injuries in 1983 contributed to that improvement.

Delisle's only product is titanium dioxide, a white, non-toxic pigment used to impart color to a number of products, including paints, fibers and many items used every day around the house.

Researcher at Ole Miss studies chronic facial pain

For some facial pain sufferers, a light touch on the face can cause excruciating pain.

Others experience symptoms ranging from dull, continuous aches to fiery pain so intense it requires emergency room treatment.

The variety of symptoms and causes is the main reason for the difficulty in treating chronic facial pain, according to Dr. Robert Moss, assistant professor of psychology at The University of Mississippi.

Moss, who received a $107,418 grant from the National Institute of Dental Research for a two-part study of facial pain, thinks the problem comes from attributing too many symptoms to the same cause.

For instance, a violinist who had difficulty opening and closing his mouth and pain in the jaw area would probably be diagnosed as suffering from myofascial pain dysfunction (MPD) or temporomandibular joint (TMJ) dysfunction. A housewife with no pain, but whose jaw made popping sounds and sometimes locked, might get the same diagnosis.

According to Moss, this is the reason many psychologists and dentists treating facial pain have no idea why some patients respond to a particular treatment and others don't.

"Research hasn't matched people to find whether their symptoms are really similar," he said.

"If we get patients with exactly the same symptoms—the same kinds of joint pain, the same sounds made by the jaw, pain in the same location—we'll be able to identify 'common cause'."

Moss explained that people with either MPD or TMJ dysfunction could experience one or more of the same symptoms: pain or tenderness in the jaw muscles, limitations of jaw movement (inability to fully open or close the mouth, or having the jaw lock) and sounds from jaw movement (popping, clicking or grinding).

If facial pain is attributed to TMJ dysfunction, the cause may be teeth that don't close properly or arthritic processes.

Although facial pain usually is associated with the TM joint, it may be due to stress resulting in unusual activity of the jaws such as clenching them or grinding the teeth.

But Moss questions the theory that stress causes myofascial pain.

"When people have chronic pain, we find many of them are under stress, but that doesn't mean stress causes the pain."

The first part of Moss' study examines the role of muscle stress caused either by anxiety or oral habits. Twenty women who suffer from facial pain will be matched with a control group of 20 who don't. And 20 women who have clicking or other jaw sounds will be matched with a no-sound control group.

The pain sufferers will be asked to come to the clinic once when they're in pain and again when they're not. Within 24 hours of a subject's pain-state visit, her control person will also visit the clinic.

Both groups will keep a daily record of symptoms and stressful events. In this way stress data for the week preceding the pain-state visit can be examined as a possible cause for the pain. And stress levels for the subjects and the control group can be compared.

The study muscle stress as a possible cause of jaw sounds, subjects who report the sounds will be examined first to rule out organic causes like arthritis.

If the problem is non-organic it may be related to some activity, Moss said. People who often rest their chins on a hand, cheerleaders and musicians who play instruments like the violin, flute or clarinet are prime prospects for this facial pain symptom because of the muscular stress such activities involve.

In both parts of the study Moss will use only female subjects because 65 to 80 percent of facial pain patients are women in the 20-40 age bracket.

Psychological causes for pain are usually suspected when no physical causes can be found.

"It may be that pain is being used by the patient as his or her only means of controlling the environment," Moss said. "Or pain may be caused by stress-related anxiety."

The second stage of the study will examine two standard psychological treatments for facial pain—biofeedback therapy and progressive relaxation training.

Biofeedback therapy uses machines called electromyographs to translate bodily changes such as muscular tension and temperature into information, usually audio tones so patients can hear changes in the body.

A biofeedback therapist working with someone suffering chronic facial pain attaches electrodes from the electromyograph to the patient's jaw. The machine measures tension in the muscles and sounds a tone which varies in frequency. High tension produces more tones.

With training in biofeedback techniques the patient learns to reduce the muscular tension which may be causing pain and is rewarded by hearing the tone less often.

In progressive relaxation training the patient is taught to decrease tension levels by alternately tensing and relaxing muscle groups throughout the body. As he or she is better able to relax, pain will probably decrease.

Moss said the study will be conducted at the University Medical Center in Jackson and will "hopefully" begin by Aug. 15.

Women with a history of facial pain who would like to participate in the study should contact Dr. Marlin Hodgson in Jackson at 987-5964, or Dr. Robert Moss at The University of Mississippi Department of Psychology, 232-5196.

Prospective subjects must be over 18 and free of facial pain at least some of the time.

Correction

In an article on waterway speed limits in the July 1 Sea Coast Echo, credit for bringing the speed problem to the attention of the board of supervisors was given to the Lakeshore Civic Association.

The correct name of the citizen group that referred the problem to the board is the Shoreline Park Civic Association, according to its vice president, Skip Marsh.

The Echo apologizes for the error.

One set of triplets is born in about every 9,216 births.

MAIN ENGINE 2017 from the orbiter Discovery is placed in the A-2 stand at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County after it is sent from the Kennedy Space Center Wednesday. The engine was removed after the Discovery's June 26 launch was aborted at T-4 seconds in the countdown. Faulty insulation in the engine may have been a factor in the launch abort, officials say. (NSTL photo)

NSTL tests Discovery shuttle engine

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Officials continued efforts in Hancock County over the weekend to pinpoint problems in a defective engine from the space shuttle Discovery.

The engine was brought to National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County Wednesday after a second aborted launch of the space shuttle Discovery on June 26.

Pan American Communications Specialist Lisa Monti said the number three flight engine was installed in one of the test stands at NSTL after it arrived from Kennedy Space Center.

The other stand, she said, holds a developmental engine that is permanently installed at NSTL for testing. Officials believe problems with the defective Discovery engine, resulted from debonding of the foam insulation—caused because the hydrogen line was not completely insulated—that caused liquefaction of nitrogen gas that dripped onto the main engine fuel valve actuator, Monti explained.

But tests Thursday evening, using the test engine and simulating those conditions, were inconclusive, she reported.

According to Monti, late Friday night or Saturday the tests were to continue, this time using the actual flight engine.

Delisle resident named to Democratic task force

State Democratic Party Chair Steve Patterson and Executive Vice Chair Ed Cole announced the appointment of 15 Mississippi Democrats to a task force on voter participation. The new appointees include Diane Peranich of Delisle.

She has been a member of the State Committee since 1983 and is a former member of the Harrison County Executive Committee. She is also an unpledged party leader and elected official delegate to the 1984 National Convention.

At its June 9 meeting, the State Executive Committee directed the task force to consider the question of the run-off primary; the presidential preference primary versus the caucus system as the state party's method for selecting National Convention delegates; simplifying the State Party's delegation selection process, including the elimination of fractional voting in the caucus process if that process is retained; timing of election of state party leaders; and direct election of the president.

The task force may take up for consideration whatever other topics it deems appropriate. The findings of the task force will be presented to the state committee for its consideration.

Accident results in recovery of stolen vehicle

By DENA BISENETTE

A hit-and-run accident in Waveland Wednesday resulted in the recovery of a stolen vehicle, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

Dorn said the accident occurred about 10 p.m. at the intersection of McLaurin Street and Highway 90, when a car driven by 38-year-old Tommy Smith of Route 5, Bay St. Louis, apparently made a wide turn coming off the highway onto McLaurin and bumped into a motorcycle.

The motorcyclist, Dino C. Bertirrotti, 51, of 6419 Iona Drive, Bay St. Louis, received minor injuries that were treated at the accident scene.

Dorn said Smith left the scene of the accident and was stopped by police at Longfellow Street. A subsequent check on the car tag number revealed that the vehicle, a two-door Toyota, had been stolen in Georgia.

Smith is charged with DUI, hit-and-run driving, driving a stolen vehicle and no driver's license, Dorn said. He is being held in the Hancock County Jail pending contact from Georgia authorities.

Damages from the accident were estimated at about $200 for the car and $100 for the motorcycle.

ETV Brief

SAILING BASICS

"Under Sail," the eight-part series on the basics of sport sailing, can be seen again on Mississippi Educational Television at 4:30 p.m. Sundays, beginning July 8. It was first seen on ETV last summer.

Series host is Robbie Doyle, a member of the U.S. Olympic sailing team, four-time Collegiate All-American sailor, three-time America's Cup contestant and 1977 America's Cup Winner.

The series is primarily an introduction to sailing and also is designed to bring viewers the background, skills and information required for the basic, as well as advanced, enjoyment of sailing.

The invention of the first mechanical clock has been attributed to Hsiao and Liang Lin-tsan of China, circa 725 A.D.

Now is the time to select jail site

The majority of residents of Hancock County appear to agree there is a need for a new jail.

Hancock's current jail, constructed in the mid-30's, has been outdated for many years.

The location of a new jail appears to be the biggest problem facing Hancock County.

It appears the site question itself could hamper the passing of a bond issue for a new jail.

We feel the most important thing our Hancock County Board of Supervisors can do now is select a site for a criminal justice facility.

There have been several potential sites and combinations of sites mentioned during the past year, and it appears a percentage of the people favor one or the other.

With one group pulling for one location and another for a different one, there will never be enough support for a bond issue to pass for a new jail.

A site needs to be selected and then everyone needs to get behind it whether they like it or not.

One of the spectators at a recent Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition emphasized the need for everyone to get behind whatever site is selected for a new jail, and this is very important.

Since indications are that a jail bond issue will be placed on the November general election ballot, the time to decide on a location is now, and everyone should work for its passage.

Quotables by CUEVAS

On Saturday morning we heard such comments as 'a disgrace,' 'a shame,' 'uncalled for,' 'shameful' and many unprintable remarks about the mud and water at the Hancock County Farmers' Market.

These comments were being made by customers as they tried to reach their favorite local farmer to purchase fresh produce.

We were told several months ago by local farmers that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors had promised to haul some clay gravel and fill in the low areas at the farmers' market shed.

It took the local farmers a lot longer to construct the new shed then it should have, but they have done their job and all that is really needed now is some way to get rid of the water and mud.

The market is used by farmers from Bay St. Louis to Leetown and all points in between, so it is a county operation.

It appears something should be done, because it will help many people.

The annual Gulf Fishermen's Association Blessing of the Fleet is scheduled today at Bayou Cadet.

It is our understanding there will be refreshments, boiled shrimp and crabs available.

As you know, the association donates proceeds from the event to some worthy cause.

If you are new to the area, Bayou Cadet is located at the western end of the seawall in Hancock County.

We received a letter from one of our Waveland subscribers telling us she had mistakenly placed some cash money in a payment book which was deposited in her mail box.

Mike Burke, her mailman, called her the next day, asked if she was missing anything and reported he had found the payment book and money.

It would have been a least a week before she would have looked for her payment book and the cash, she said.

She was so pleased to learn there are still some honest people in this world.

We agree with this subscriber, and feel that people like Burke should be praised for their honesty.

Another letter we received this week offered praises for the Bay St. Louis Police Department in solving a problem of a resident.

This person offered praises for Chief Douglas Williams and the entire department for the courteous and professional way in which the matter was handled.

It makes us feel good to receive letters telling of the good deeds people do.

MUD AND WATER—Customers had to dodge mud puddles Saturday at the Hancock County Farmers' Market at the county fairgrounds. The local farmers constructed a new shed during the winter but many were not able to park in their bays Saturday because of wet conditions. They report being promised some fill in the shed area by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors several months ago. The market is open Saturday and Wednesday mornings with local county farmers offering fresh produce. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Matters of Health

PREVENTING HOT WEATHER FOOD SPOilage

How can I prevent food spoilage now that hot weather is here?

Proper refrigeration and preparation of foods—especially meats, fish, poultry and dairy products—is even more important during summer because bacteria grows faster in warm temperatures.

The danger zone for bacteria growth is between 45° and 140°. Since bacteria divide every 20 minutes, the longer food sits in warm air, the more bacteria it'll contain.

Here are a few tips for preventing spoilage:

1. Keep perishable foods in the refrigerator at 40° or lower. Keep frozen foods at zero to minus 20°.

These temperatures are suggested for year-round, but they are particularly important in summer when you may leave food out, such as at the beach or at picnics.

2. Never thaw food at room temperature. Run the package under cold water, or cook frozen such meats as ground beef, patties or steaks. The meat will thaw as it cooks, and you won't run the risk of spoiling meat that has been left on a kitchen counter to thaw.

3. Store leftover cooked foods in the refrigerator as soon as possible. Place them in a shallow container—no deeper than four inches—so they'll cool to the below 40° temperature faster. If you reheat a leftover, cook it above the 160° mark to kill any bacteria that may have formed while it was cooling.

4. Keep cold foods cold. If a perishable food, such as meat, has been out of the refrigerator for more than four hours, throw it away. This includes such foods as chicken salad and tuna salad—not because the mayonnaise has spoiled, but because meat and fish are receptacles for bacteria. Most commercial mayonnaise contains chemicals, vinegar or lemon juice to retard or prevent the growth of bacteria.

Will I get food poisoning if I eat food that has spoiled without my realizing it?

Yes, spoiled food can make you sick. Four infectious diseases are associated with food spoilage, particularly during warm weather:

1. Salmonella bacteria are found in raw and cooked poultry, shellfish, eggs, smoked and cooked meats and in people who have recently had the disease.

These people may carry and transmit the disease for up to 12 weeks after they have recovered. Symptoms of this condition include abdominal cramps, diarrhea, chills and vomiting.

Although it can be serious, it's possible to have symptoms and not realize that you've had salmonella infection.

2. Vibrosis is less common and has become known only recently. Symptoms are similar to those of salmonella infection.

In addition, blood may appear in a person's mucus and stool. The vibrosis bacteria is found in seawater, so raw shellfish may carry the disease. Like salmonella, it usually lasts for a day or two.

Staphylococcal infection occurs in ham, chicken, dairy products, potato salad and cream fillings. Symptoms are similar to those of salmonella, but they may be acute. Usually, they last only a few hours.

Botulism, a disease that affects the central nervous system, is relatively rare.

THE COST OF STATE GOVERNMENT

Peter Grace, chairman of the President's Commission on Costs of Federal Government was in Mississippi a few days ago, explaining the work of his commission to members of the Concrete Industries Association. Primarily, said Grace, the federal government is out of control, financially, with too little being done to restore order.

The Grace Commission offered 2,478 recommendations, designed to save the federal government $424.4 billion over three years.

There was a reason for having Peter Grace in Mississippi, in addition to the report from his commission which he presented to members of the Association.

A group of business leaders wanted to talk to Mr. Grace about the possibility of a similar study for Mississippi—not led by Grace but by a Mississippi business leader who is concerned about the size and growth of government in this state.

Concern about the cost of government has been expressed to the Governor by the group of state business leaders, and the Governor has announced his commitment to such a study.

The Grace Commission was made up of business leaders from across the country who worked at their own expense and at the expense of their private companies.

Mississippi needs such a study at the state level; Mississippi business leaders are willing to participate, even to take the lead; and it appears that the Governor is ready to provide leadership at the highest levels of government. The time to get started is now.

WHAT IS RHEUMATIC FEVER?

Rheumatic fever is an inflammation that may affect the heart, joints, brain or skin. It is almost always the result of a strep throat infection and is accompanied by fever. The most serious result of rheumatic fever is damage to the heart valves. However, heart damage is not an inevitable result of rheumatic fever. The risk of rheumatic fever can be decreased by prompt medical treatment of strep throat infections. Any one who has been a victim of the disease has an increased risk of recurrence, which can be diminished by long-term treatment with antibiotics. ## Commissioner feels minimum drinking age will save lives

"Making 21 the minimum age for purchasing all alcoholic beverages will save lives in Mississippi," Commissioner James L. Roberts Jr. of the Department of Public Safety predicted Monday.

Roberts' statement came during a speech of "Mississippi 21," a meeting called to rally support for a state law to increase from 18 to 21 the legal age for purchasing beer and wine.

It is illegal for persons in Mississippi to purchase other alcoholic beverages before the 21st birthday.

"In 1983 there were 627 automobile wrecks in Mississippi in which one or more people were killed," Roberts said. "In 117 of those wrecks at least one of the drivers was under the age of 20."

"That means teenaged drivers were involved in 19 percent of the fatal accidents in Mississippi in 1983 despite the fact they make up only nine percent of the 1.7 million licensed drivers in this state.

"There were 9,559 automobile accidents in 1983 in which one or more people were injured, and teenaged drivers were involved in 25 percent of those," Roberts said.

"Raising the minimum age for purchasing beer and wine in Mississippi will save the lives of young people and also the lives of older drivers who might be using the highway at the same time," he added.

The National Safety Council estimates that 1,250 lives per year could be saved nationwide by raising the minimum age for purchasing alcoholic beverages to 21.

Safety statistics indicate that drivers under the age of 21 are twice as likely as other drivers to be involved in alcohol-related traffic accidents.

Engineer James Chiniche also met with the council and presented a proposal for marking existing easements on a drainage ditch at Dogwood Drive. He said he expects the cost of staking out the easements to be no less than $400 and no higher than $750.

Because parts of the ditch have been filled in or eroded over a period of years and because council members believe it will have to be reconstructed in order to alleviate a drainage problem on Dogwood Drive, Chiniche's proposal was accepted.

In other business, the council elected Harry Farve its president for 1984-85. Sheldon Seuzeneau was elected vice president.

The Council also voted to readvertise for bids for heating units to be used in a Housing and Urban Development-funded housing rehabilitation project.

The council approved Mayor Bennett's recommendation that Joe Monti be appointed to the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Board.

The mayor also reported on the cost of constructing a fence at Marketown Shopping Center to keep trash from blowing into the yards of nearby residents. The three-foot-high fence and a culvert will be built on a city easement by city workers and will cost about $1,235.

Bennett also said he is still trying to contact the shopping center owners to see if they are interested in sharing the cost of construction.

The next council meeting will be July 17.

the federal funding.

A county sewer system to include Shoreline Park, Jourdan River residents and other outside areas could be funded in future expansions if approved by EPA, Longo said.

The innovative system using an individual grinding pump for each residence in those areas would enable sewage to be transported in two- to three-inch force mains to the treatment plant before discharge, Longo said.

The additional areas are in our long-range planning, Longo stated.

Wastewater officials will meet in Jackson Wednesday with EPA and Bureau of Natural Resources officials who assist with EPA funding distribution.

The state must approve the plan and recommend it for funding to EPA officials in Atlanta by August 30.

Other business included brief discussions about a public hearing scheduled for August 6 to discuss the new plans with state and EPA officials.

A replacement for Dolph Keller, who has resigned from the wastewater management district, was also discussed but no replacement was announced.

prosecution, the complaint continues, are a result of a vicious conspiracy couched in special circumstances and bad faith...designed to harass, intimidate, vexatiously annoy and to otherwise cause great, immediate and irreparable injury to (Guilbeau and Ladner) physically, emotionally and financially, all having been done in the face of an absolute promise of immunity from state prosecution and with no reasonable or rational expectation of conviction.

Guilbeau and Ladner were also indicted in April by a federal grand jury in Brownsville, Tex.

Peterson said a conference was held Friday afternoon in the Biloxi office of U.S. District Court Judge Walter L. Nixon.

"Basically, the whole deal is that the defendants' attorneys want the judge to issue a restraining order not to prosecute the two in state court," he said.

"And, of course, we objected."

Earlier this week Peterson said all the allegations in the federal complaint will be denied.

Early sex education should begin at home

By Norine Barnes
Child Development
Specialist

Early childhood is an important period in the formation of sexual attitudes, but most adults are not prepared to deal with the sexual feelings and behavior of their children.

Between the ages of two and six, children become aware of physical differences between the sexes. They express curiosity about reproduction and birth, and ask many sex-related questions.

The following guidelines are for parents who want to help young children learn about sexuality in the natural course of their daily lives:

—Use correct words for the physical parts of the body. Slang terms or nicknames are inappropriate. Small children will have to learn the correct terms later, and they may be embarrassed when they make improper references in the presence of their peers.

—Provide natural opportunities for children to observe each other during their pre-school years. Natural places for these youngsters to learn about body differences include the bedroom (when they change clothes) and the bathroom (when they bathe).

—Use printed resources when you discuss the physical differences between the sexes. Many books are available to teach children of different age levels.

Children often display curiosity about reproduction—especially children who are about to share the experience of a birth in their own family.

How Much Does a Child Already Know?
When a child asks about reproduction or birth, begin an answer by finding out just how much the child already knows. Start by posing such questions as: Where do you think babies come from? or How do you think you got here?

Sometimes children get incorrect or inaccurate information from other children or adults. Parents should take this into consideration and be able to offer simple explanations about reproduction and birth.

Babies don't grow in stomachs. They don't sprout from seeds, don't grow in a cabbage patch and they are not delivered by the stork. Simple and accurate explanations are important because the processes of reproduction and birth are not easily understood the first time around.

Remember to use age-appropriate books written specifically to explain reproduction and birth. Avoid using plants and animals as substitutes for discussing human reproduction, but give children the chance to see animals being born.

Parents and other adults involved with developing children should realize they may have to answer children's questions on this subject again and again.

City applies for block grant

By DENA BISNETTE

The city of Bay St. Louis is planning to apply for a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant.

At a public hearing held prior to Tuesday's city council meeting, it was proposed that the grant be used to extend a Housing and Urban Development-funded project currently underway in the city.

Herman Briggs, who is in charge of the current project, explained that the city is allowed to apply for additional funding because the project is already 95 percent complete.

The current project replaces and rehabilitates eligible substandard housing in an area between Washington, St. Charles and St. George Street and Necaise Avenue.

The new project, if approved, will use Community Development Block Grant funds to do similar work in an area from Necaise Avenue to Beach Boulevard between St. Charles and St. George Streets.

However, Briggs said the whole proposed area may not be covered in the project because of the $500,000 limitation on the amount of funding for which the city is allowed to apply under program regulations.

In addition to the housing work, the new project will also probably include extension of some gas lines.

Ron Murray Consultants is preparing the application for the city and must submit it to the Community Development Block Grant Program by August 17.

The public hearing Tuesday was part of the application procedure.

New area sportsman's group to hold kids fishing rodeo

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The first annual Gulf Coast Sportsman's Kids Fishing Rodeo is scheduled for Saturday, July 28, according to Jimmy Mayfield, rodeo weighmaster.

Mayfield said, "The fishing rodeo is open to boys and girls through age 12. It will be held at the American Legion Memorial Pier on Washington Street in Bay St. Louis."

Pre-registration forms will be available at several local sports outlets next week and will also be available from 8 a.m. to 12 noon on the day of the rodeo.

Parental permission must accompany all entries, Mayfield emphasized. Prizes will be awarded to all entrants with trophies for all fish categories, including a special category for crabs aged four and under.

Fuel switched at Bay station

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

A mixup during refueling Sunday at the Delta Marketing service station on U.S. 90 in Bay St. Louis resulted in the switching of unleaded and diesel fuels.

"The transport company put unleaded fuel in the diesel tank and diesel fuel in the unleaded tank," Julie Ramsey, store manager, reported.

Ramsey said the wrong fuel was pumped by customers Sunday, but the pumps were out of service Monday and were cleaned and refueled Monday night.

Ramsey said she understands customers who experienced car trouble as a result of pumping the wrong fuel will be reimbursed for reasonable repairs and should call 1-800-251-2533 for details regarding reimbursement.

Mississippi students lag in computer study

Only 36 percent of Mississippi's public schools use microcomputers in instruction compared to 68 percent nationally, according to a recently published research study based on telephone calls to the nation's 15,275 public school districts.

According to the study, 1,389 microcomputers are now in use in 340 Mississippi public schools.

With microcomputers becoming commonplace in the schools, the level of student access is a key issue. The study conducted by Market Data Retrieval measures the potential for student access through 'micro-intensity,' the ratio of students to microcomputers in schools using instructional microcomputers.

Key findings from the study show:

—There are 135 students for every microcomputer in Mississippi schools using microcomputers in instruction, compared to 92 nationally.

—Micro-Intensity varies by grade level:

Students per computer—Elementary, Mississippi, 198; U.S. total, 112;

Junior high, Mississippi 103, U.S. total, 92;

Senior high, Mississippi 105, U.S. total, 77.

—Of the 1,389 microcomputers in use in Mississippi, 30 percent are Radio Shack, 16 percent are Commodore and 13 percent are manufactured by Apple.

—Compared to other states and the District of Columbia, Mississippi ranks 30th in enrollment, 50th in the percent of public schools using microcomputers in instruction, 45th in the number of microcomputers installed in its schools and 44th in micro-intensity—providing students potential access to microcomputers.

The study entitled "Microcomputers in Schools 1983-84, A Comprehensive Survey and Analysis," was published by Market Data Retrieval, a Westport, Conn. research firm and leading supplier of educational data to schools and publishers. It provides the most comprehensive picture to date of the growing role of the computer in education the publisher says, including three-year trends, brand distribution and detailed state rankings.

The study numbers over 100 pages, including individual state profiles. Soft cover, spiral bound copies are available for $50 from Market Data Retrieval, Ketchum Place, Westport, Conn. 06880.

Summer workshops, seminars reported

STUDENT TRAINING

The University of Southern Mississippi will offer a beginner student workshop and an advanced student trainer workshop July 8-11.

These intensive workshops emphasize practical experience.

The beginner workshop will be for students who have not attended a workshop at USM or a Cramer Workshop, and will emphasize taping, first aid and emergency situations.

The advanced workshop is for students who have attended a workshop at USM or who have been to a Cramer Workshop, and will deal with recognition of injuries, anatomy, taping and emergency situations.

Jim Gallaspy of the Department of Athletic Administration and Coaching will direct the workshop.

Registration will be from 1-2 p.m. Sunday, July 8 at the Field House located at the north end of the football stadium. Enrollment is limited.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at 266-4201.

PHONICS

Phonics for Elementary School Teachers will be offered by the University of Southern Mississippi Division of Continuing Education beginning July 10.

The workshop will include teaching phonics and structural analysis.

Among the topics to be covered are meeting the needs of regular and remedial elementary and special education classroom teachers, according to Dr. Janie Allen, director of the Department of Curriculum and Instruction.

Registration for the course will be from 8-9 a.m. in the lobby of Hardy Hall at USM-Gulf Park. Workshop sessions will meet from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Students must contact the USM Office of Admissions for admission or readmission prior to completing registration for any intensive course.

This three-semester-hour class is scheduled July 10-31 with formal classroom sessions July 10, 11, 17, 18, 24 and 25. Additional course activities may be scheduled by the instructor to complement the formal classroom activities.

For additional information contact the Department of Conferences and Workshops at 865-4508.

GIFTED WORKSHOP

A workshop in "Special Education of the High-Ability Student" will provide information to meet the needs of the regular classroom teacher.

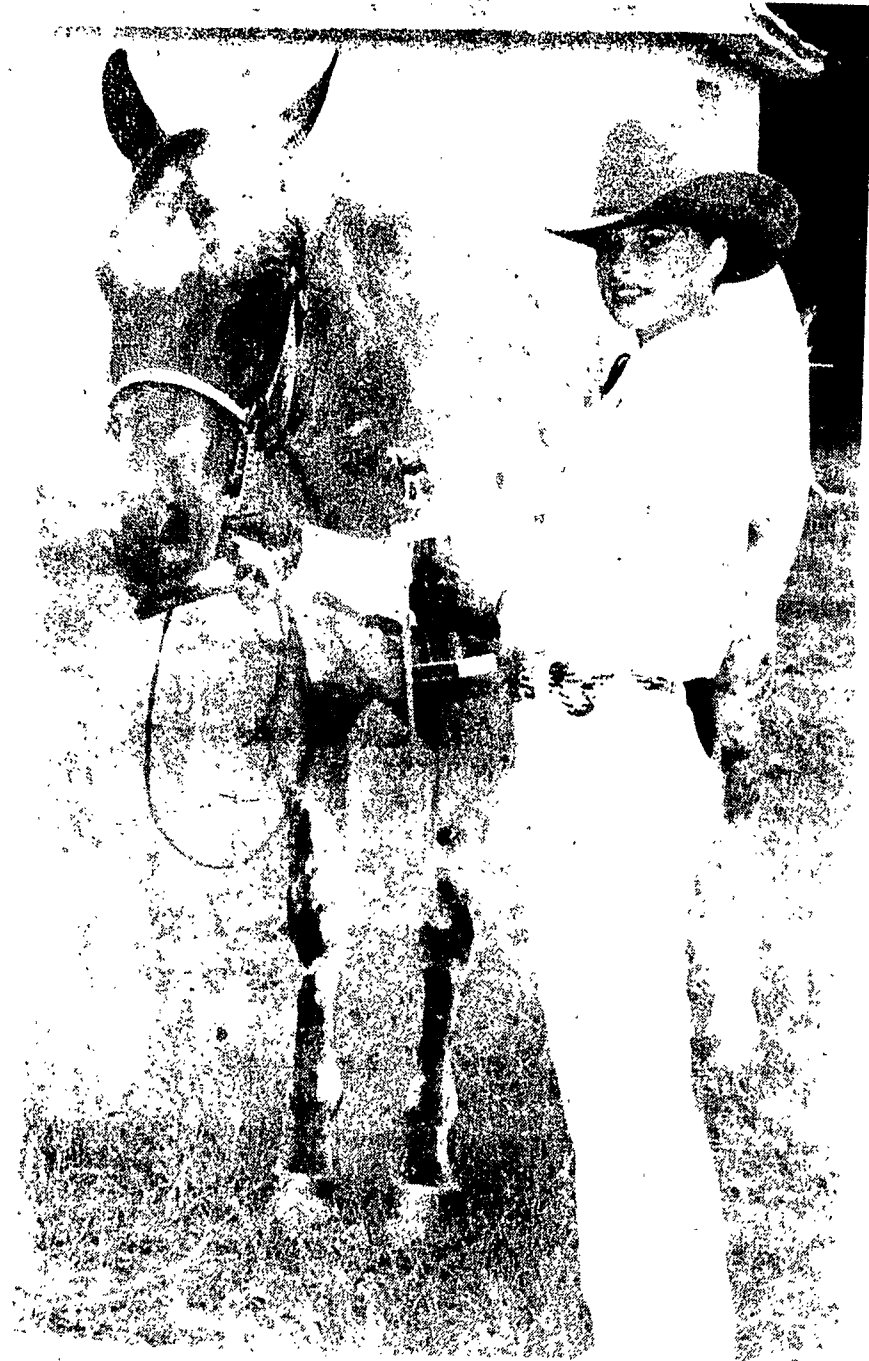

The workshop is designed for regular classroom teachers and others interested in the education of the gifted and will emphasize new developments in programs, methods and materials for the instruction of high-ability children.

The workshop is directed by Dr. Frances A. Karnes of the Department of Special Education.

Registration will be from 8-9 a.m. July 9 in McLemore Hall. Workshop sessions will meet from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This three-semester-hour class is scheduled July 9-22 with formal classroom sessions July 9-13.

For additional information on the above workshops contact Conferences and Workshops at 266-4189.

FIRST IN SHOWMANSHIP—Abby VanCalsem of Pass Christian and her horse Pozi Traction captured first place for 16- to 18-year-olds in showmanship in the Mississippi Southeast District 4-H Horse Show at the Hancock County Fairgrounds Saturday. There were some 571 entries in the 4-H district show which began Friday and ended late Saturday. Hancock County's 4-H Club, the district sponsor, had 88 participants. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Carey Dinner Theatre to present "2 Suite"

Carey Dinner Theatre at William Carey College in Gulfport will present "2 Suite" as the second production of its tenth anniversary season.

The musical revue, compiled and arranged by Eric Gray, will be presented nightly except Sunday and Monday from July 10-21.

The title, "2 Suite," is symbolic and has a variety of implications. Basically, the revue is a collage of ideas based on the lives of couples. Just as a suite, a composition form in music, goes through several movements, so also does life present its own phases and styles.

The revue is divided into four segments following the lives of people.

The first is the teen-age years—a light often comic look at the days of inroductions, proms, football games and close friendships.

Adulthood looks at the days of courtship, marriage and the problems of 'getting started.'

Midlife deals with growing with each other.

Old age presents the years of contentment and 'growing old together.'

A wide variety of song and dance numbers is enhanced by comic dialogue written by Greg Carnes and Ken Richardson.

Dinner is served at 7 p.m. in the O.L. Quave Theatre on the campus of William Carey College. The performance follows.

The box office is open daily except Sundays from 10:30 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The admission price of $12.50 includes dinner and show.

Waveland Methodist holds Bible school graduation ceremony

By DENA BISNETTE

Vacation Bible school at Waveland Methodist Church recently closed for the summer with a graduation ceremony that included the presentation of diplomas, a processional and music.

Pastor Curtis Moffett presented diplomas to the participants in the one-week after each group of students had performed two songs for an audience of parents and teachers.

The pre-kindergarten group, which was taught by Frances Graves and her assistants Tracy Busch, Ilene Dorn, Tiffany Brackweith, Debbie Estapa and Jackie Brink, included Erin Favre, Tammy Estapa, Melissa Estapa, Victoria Asher, Melissa Dorn, Lacy Seuzeneau and Heather Poillon.

Ruth Sanders taught the kindergarten group, which included Trina Gonzalez, Bart Lockhart, Jason Johnson, Donna Schmidt, Dawn Perkins, Laurie Schilling, Nicole Mulligan and Tommy Marsh.

The younger elementary class included Jennifer Sheffield, Michelle Aubert, Chad Johnson, James Schmidt, Michael Schmidt, Wally Worsley, Drew Worsley and Michael Sanders. Their teacher was Hattie Lee.

Older elementary students, including Fred Asher, Melissa Seuzeneau, Kevin Seuzeneau, Christy Lockhart, Trevor Gonzalez, and Randy Perkins, were taught by Idus Ose.

Additional adult assistants included Marie Schneller, music; graduation soloist Melba Sheffield; helpers Roxanne Furey, Eddie Sanders and John Perkins; Millie Seuzeneau and Selma George, crafts chairmen; and Gwen Schilling and Rosalie Crawford, refreshment committee.

PRE-KINDERGARTEN—Members of the youngest group of participants in vacation Bible school graduation exercises at Waveland Methodist Church join hands in preparation for a song.

SINGING TOGETHER—Students at Bible school graduation exercises held recently at Waveland Methodist Church sing for their parents. Each group of students performed several songs before receiving diplomas from their pastor, Rev. Curtis Moffett.

PERFORMING FOR PARENTS—Members of the older elementary group at Waveland Methodist Vacation Bible School gesture as they sing while performing for their parents at recent graduation ceremonies.

DOWN HOME

by DARLENE UNDERWOOD
Hancock County Extension Home Economist

Starting today for five consecutive weeks I will be conducting a money management home study series through this news column.

Financial Planning for the Two-Paycheck Family can help dual-career marriages anticipate money management problems before they arise, suggest strategies to use to develop a financial plan, discuss insurance options and retirement plans and become aware of tax laws and ways to save tax dollars.

The first part follows—Let me know if you find it helpful or if you need additional information about budgeting, financial planning, investments or wills.

Financial Planning for the Two-Paycheck Family Part One

Today there are more married couples with two wage earners than there were with one. Over half of all married American women worked outside the home in 1980.

Two wage earners bring in extra dollars for the family, but sometimes these extra dollars can create difficulties. When the husband was the sole wage earner, he usually had the last word in how the family income was spent, but now as more wives are working, families are learning to make joint decisions about money management.

This series on financial planning for the two paycheck family should help you anticipate money-management problems before they arise so that you will be able to find solutions before you face a crisis.

Whose Problem?
Research shows that couples whose marriages work best have clear yet flexible agreements as to who does what. Two-paycheck families face special problems, such as: Who stays home with a sick child? How will the housekeeping tasks be divided? Who will do the grocery shopping? Whose job comes first in importance? Does the family relocate with the husband's job or the wife's?

Agreement is not always easy. Various emotions such as frustration, guilt, anger, or disappointment can get in the way. You can overcome these problems, however, if you communicate with each other. You will need to set priorities and re-evaluate your old habits and assumptions. Here are some suggestions to help you manage better:

•As a family, set priorities on what chores are most important.
•Delegate responsibility for those tasks among family members. Take care of the most pressing items first.

•Lower your cleaning and cooking standards. Ask yourself, "Will my family remember me for the clean house and great meals, or for the time I spend with them?"

•If your schedules are really pressing, consider hiring outside help.

•Don't try to be a "super person," devoting time to a job or career while insisting on a perfectly run household.

How To Divide the $$$

A second income in a family means that you have to decide how that income will be spent. "That's easy," you say, "It will help pay the bills," or "More money means more enjoyment for the whole family." It often isn't quite so simple. Here are some important questions you have to face:

1. Should each partner have money that is not accountable to the other?

2. How are the bills to be paid? Will each spouse take responsibility for separate items, or is the husband responsible for the basics and the wife for the frills?

3. Should the spouse who makes the most money have more power in money management decisions?

4. Will you live on one income and save the other for a special purpose, such as a downpayment on a house or a retirement fund?

These are serious questions that need to be discussed. No one system will fit everyone because individual needs, values, interests, and personalities differ. Work out a plan that feels right for you, and decide on it together. Don't be afraid to change the plan if it doesn't work.

Joint or Separate Accounts?

How you choose to divide your earnings will be reflected in the way your savings and checking accounts are held. You can have joint accounts, in which case both husband and wife have access to the money; or you can have separate accounts, which means only one spouse has access.

There are advantages and disadvantages for both accounts. A joint account can promote a feeling of sharing, of it being "our" money. On the other hand, there can be legal problems.

Most states consider the money in a joint account to belong to the husband, even if the wife is contributing her salary as well. To avoid problems in this situation, you should keep records to prove that the wife is a contributor.

Separate accounts also have advantages. A separate checking account can help establish a credit rating for the wife.

Another advantage is that the money is clearly in the name of one partner. Therefore, upon the death of either, the surviving spouse would have money to cover expenses until the estate is settled. In case of divorce, neither spouse could withdraw all of the money. Whether you decide to have joint or separate accounts, you will have to decide how to combine your income for expenses and savings. Here are three possibilities:

1. Equal Share Couples put an equal amount of their respective salaries into joint savings and checking accounts to cover basic household expenses. The remainder can be spent or saved as each sees fit.

2. Proportional Share. Couples both contribute a percentage of their salaries to cover household expenses and joint savings. The remainder is theirs to do with as they please. With this plan, both spouses contribute to household expenses while each retains some independent funds.

3. Pooler Couples combine all of their income to use for both household and personal expenses. With this method, the work of each spouse is valued equally, regardless of salary earned, and the spouse who earns less has the same amount of purchasing power.

A possible disadvantage of this system is that either spouse may feel obligated to discuss all purchases with the other, making each expenditure a joint decision. This is why some financial experts suggest the pooler couples keep an independent "allowance" of a set amount. This would keep the feeling that all income is shared while it would also let each spouse make some purchases which are not accountable to the other.

Who Works Where?

Many families have to decide whose job career to follow if their jobs pull them in different geographic directions. Here are some options that might help you in making this decision:

1. Relocate where the spouse with fewer job opportunities has the best chance of finding work.

2. Each partner lives and works in the geographic area that offers the best opportunities. This is known as a "commuter" marriage. This would be an undesirable choice for most people, but it may be a temporary solution for a short time.

3. Refuse to accept a job transfer and stay where you are. With two salaries being earned, your family may not miss the loss of added income from a promotion. This choice would allow the family to maintain close ties and friendships, but remember that careers can be harmed by this decision.

Credit Anytime?

Two-paycheck families often have credit-related problems because they usually qualify for more credit than single wage earner families. If you are in debt and feel that your finances are out of control, there are some choices open to you:

1. A Consolidation loan is a loan taken out to pay off all outstanding debts. The consolidation loan stretches out payments, and the monthly payments are smaller than the total of other payments. The longer time involved also means that you will pay more interest.

2. Renegotiate your debts with your creditors. Most creditors will agree to a workable plan of repayment if you show that you are sincere and willing to pay. Be sure to have any new agreement in written form. Honor any agreement you make because your future credit depends on your financial responsibility.

In 1975, Congress passed the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, which, among other things, gave women the right to be considered for credit by the same standards as men. Here are some of your rights you may not know.

•When a woman marries, she can transfer accounts to her married name without opening a new account. This, of course, assumes that there are no major changes in her financial situation. If she wishes to open a joint account with her husband, then his income will be taken into consideration.

•A woman can apply for an account based only on her income. If she is credit-worthy on her income alone, then questions about her husband's salary cannot be asked.

•Any new joint account must be opened in both names (George and Helen Jones, not Mr. and Mrs. George Jones). Old joint accounts can be changed to include the names of both spouses if requested.

•It is illegal to question an applicant about birth control practices or childbearing plans.

•Credit cannot be refused or terms of existing accounts altered solely because of a change in marital status.

•A married person cannot be denied credit based on the spouse's credit rating as long as the application is not for a joint account.

Activities

1. Set aside a quiet time for you and your spouse to complete "Get Off the Homemaking Hook." Talk about what is important to each of you.

Rearrange the way household tasks are done, if necessary.
2. Discuss with your spouse how you might handle a potential job offer that involves relocation.
3. Discuss how much money you would feel comfortable spending without talking it over first with your spouse.
How does your spouse feel about this?
4. Review and implement the suggestions for getting housework done. If you have any additional hints, please share them with us.

Safety required in home canning

By Melissa Mixon
Food and Nutrition Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

Canning is the most popular method of preserving tomatoes.

To assure that home-canned tomatoes are safe to eat, it is essential to select them carefully and process them properly.

Tomatoes with a sufficient amount of acid can be safely processed in a boiling water bath canner.

Because the amount of acid decreases during ripening, overripe tomatoes should be avoided. Select firm, ripe tomatoes that are free from bruises and decay.

Tomatoes must be processed in a boiling water bath to destroy molds and yeasts which grow in high acid foods. When tomatoes are packed boiling hot, process pint jars 35 minutes and quart jars for 45 minutes.

The raw pack method of preserving tomatoes is no longer recommended until additional research can be completed.

Tomato puree, pastes and sauces are also popular. Many of these include vegetables.

A tested recipe must be followed if tomato-vegetable mixtures are to be canned. Processing recommendations are based on the proportions of ingredients specified.

Any change will affect the acidity and consistency of the mixture; therefore, the safety of the canned product will be questionable. When different proportions are used, the mixture should be frozen.

Piernas family holds reunion in Pass Christian

Children of Henry (Buster) and Margaret Piernas hosted a reunion of the family July 4 in Pass Christian. Relatives and friends from California, Texas, Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian gathered, picnic style, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Jr. Piernas.

Offered by Father Cornelius Sexton, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and welcome by Mrs. Yvonne Piernas, the day's events.

Activities included a family picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Piernas on Morton Avenue, and a Saturday evening followed by a buffet at the family home on Yvonne.

Children, who had not been together since 1959, are: Yvonne Piernas, 11, of Fremont, Calif., and Thomas King of San Francisco, Calif., Jules Piernas, USAF, Altus, Okla., Eugene Piernas and Michael Piernas of Los Angeles, Calif., John Piernas of Fairfield, Calif., Henry Piernas Jr., Anthony Piernas, Vivian Piernas White and Linda Piernas Burton all of Pass Christian.

They were joined by the families of Margaret Piernas Guyot, Olivia Piernas Hunter, Anna Piernas Swannier, Lucien Piernas, Roman (Buddy) Piernas, families of the late Roy (Spookie) Piernas, the late Lynch Piernas and many relatives of the late Jules and Mathilde (Morgan) Piernas during the two-week long reunion.

One of the highlights of the event was also the reunion of Althea Lamelle Piernas and her sisters, Wilomena Hendricks of New Orleans, La., and Louise Alexander of Compton, Calif., all former natives of Pass Christian.

Student group sets Methodist musical events

The nine-person Lightforce group of Oral Roberts University will present musical outreach programs at Clermont Harbor United Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, according to Rev. Robert F. Nay, pastor.

Students of ORU traditionally spread out in teams from Tulsa during the summer academic break. The group coming to Mississippi last appeared in Huntsville, Ala.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights, the team will present programs at Pearlington United Methodist Church.

The students will assist both churches in daytime canvassing of their respective churches, Nay said.

The Clermont congregation will hold a gumbo dinner for the student guests at 5 p.m. Monday.

Elmore appointed acting tourism director

The Board of Economic Development has approved the appointment of Al Elmore as acting director of the Tourism Division of the Mississippi Department of Economic Development.

Accepting the recommendation of DED Executive Director Bill Hackett, the board recognized Elmore as interim director during the leave of absence of State Tourism Director George Williams. Williams, who was granted leave June 9, is now marketing director for the Louisiana World Exposition.

As chairman of the private, non-profit Mississippi World's Fair Council, Inc., Hackett also announced that Elmore has been named acting director of the World's Fair Council.

"With his experience and knowledge of Mississippi's travel industry, I am fully confident that Al Elmore can direct our tourism program during this important period," Hackett said.

In his new positions, Elmore will direct operations of the state tourism office and the state program for the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans.

Elmore, a native of North Carolina, joined the Department of Economic Development in October 1980. From 1976-1980, he served as coordinator for a five-state tourism promotion program by the Ozarks Regional Commission. Elmore holds a BS and MBA from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. He is married and has one son.

Wear Your Welcome.

Let's show our visitors some real Southern hospitality this summer — with the Gulf Coast Welcome Badge.

By wearing it, we tell vacationers we're glad to see them. And that we hope they have a great time on the coast.

With your badge, we'll also throw in one of the new Mississippi Gulf Coast bumper stickers.

Get yours free, while supplies last.

Montgomery sponsors defense seminar

Rep. G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery will sponsor a defense procurement seminar July 10 in Jackson to offer Mississippi business and industry officials a better insight on how to pursue defense contracts.

Commodore James B. Whittaker, assistant commander for inventory and systems integrity at Naval Supply Command Headquarters in Washington, D.C., will conduct the seminar, Montgomery said. The event is being coordinated by Robert Smith, director of the Small Business Development Center in Jackson.

Co-sponsoring the seminar are the Mississippi Department of Economic Development, Mississippi Research and Development Center, Small Business Administration, Mississippi Manufacturing Association and Mississippi Economic Council.

"Besides ships and weapons systems, the Defense Department buys construction materials, paint, office supplies and hundreds of other items," Rep. Montgomery said. "Businesses in our state offer many of these goods and services at competitive prices and I hope the seminar will show Mississippi businessmen how to better utilize this market."

The program will alert potential suppliers to what kinds of goods and services the government buys, where help is available and what to look for in doing business with the government. The one-day event will be at the Coliseum Ramada.

For more information on the seminar, contact Smith at 982-3825 in Jackson or Rep. Montgomery's office in Washington at 202-225-5031.

FIRST BIRTHDAY—Tania Lorraine Johnston, daughter of Lloyd D. and Audrey Johnston of Bay St. Louis, celebrated her first birthday June 21, with many friends and relatives with a surf theme party at the home of her parents. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Loretta Johnston of Bay St. Louis and the late Lloyd J. Johnston, and the late Emmett and Rose Kennedy.

Casino Bingo is available at 48 National Supermarkets located in Southern Louisiana, Southern Mississippi and Mobile, Alabama. Game is scheduled to begin May 6, 1984 and end August 4, 1984. However, it officially ends upon distribution of all game tickets. When the total number of approved winners of any of the game prizes (as set forth in the odds chart) is achieved, then that specific prize category will be terminated without further notice. All prizes must be claimed within 14 days of termination as announced in our advertisements or they will be forfeited. This promotion may be repeated.

Updated odds will be posted in all participating stores and in weekly advertising thereafter.

Federal judge says

Virginia should

By DENA BISNETTE
Virginia Guilbeau and her son Gregory Ladner should face prosecution for their alleged participation in bringing marijuana into Hancock County, according to a ruling Chief U.S. District Judge Walter L. Nixon handed down Tuesday in Biloxi.
Judge Nixon's decision concluded a hearing in which Guilbeau and Ladner tried to obtain an injunction against District Attorney Cono Caranna and Sheriff Ronald Peterson.
If Judge Nixon had granted it, the injunction would have barred any state level prosecution of Guilbeau and Ladner on the drug charges, which were brought against them after a March 24 raid on the Guilbeau residence by Drug Enforcement Agency and sheriff's department officers netted about 5,000 pounds of marijuana.

Continuance a judge to rule to

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
Circuit Judge Kosta N. Vlahos will rule this afternoon on whether Virginia Guilbeau and Gregory Ladner will be tried next week in Hancock County or will be granted a continuance.
The two are scheduled for trial July 18, along with Raul Rojas-Lazardo and Ivan Martinez-Junco.
Yesterday one of their attorneys, William Dukes, withdrew a motion to quash similar to the one overruled Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Walter L. Nixon, but asked that their trial be continued.
The attorneys for these defendants
